A WONDER-CHILD.

Δ Six-Weeks-Old Baby that Talked Mysteriously and Died.

Mysteriously and Died.

From the New York Mercury.

The old rickety brick building occupying lots Nos. 221 and 223 Ridge street, is just now of special interest to the Hebrew population of this city. In that edifics there was recently born to Mrs. Minneapolls, Minn. It is seven stories his faith, now a widow, an infant of the male gender. At birth the little fellow forty run of burrs, and turns out 1,000 had fully developed teets, and his head burrels of flour per day.

was quite thickly covered with hair. These remarkable characteristics of the infant naturally caused an immense deal of gessip in the neighborhood, and numbers of people visited the tenement house to get a peep at the curiosity. The mother of the child, a hard-working washerwoman, was greatly analyst because her baby was not like night because her baby was not like other children. When her baby was six weeks old, the mother left him alone one weeks old, the mother left him alone one day in his cradie while she went out to do some washing for a neighbor. Another child, all little girl of seven years, was left with the baby. When the mether returned the girl said:

"Ma, the baby has been acting awful strange; he has been sitting up in the cradle and talking." The mother could not believe this wonderful story, and told the little girl that she must be mistaken. Just then the woman, walking toward the cr die, was astonished at seeing its little occupant sitting bolt upright, and its tongue giving utterance to intelligent sentences.

Terrioly frightened, the mother sent for Rabbi Eli riirsca, of the neighboring Jewish synagogue. What happened is best described in the mother's own language.

best described in the mother's own language.

Said she to the repower: "When the officer of the synagogue came I told him that my baby had be in talking. He claimed it was nonsels:—hat such a uning could not be. I told nim that it was readly so, and be asked me what the could said. I informed him that the child said. I informed him that the child said is at up in its cradle and distinctly spoke the following words: Mother, why did you go away and leave me so long?' At inis the Rabbi walked to the cradle, when the baby raised up and looked at him. The Rabbi exclaimed, how can you have such impudence as to sit up in the cradle?' The boy then said so pianly that we understood it well: 'I could tell you a great deal that you don't know; ask me much and I will tell you much; ask me little, and I will tell you inter it know more about this world and the next than you know or ever can learn.'"

The mother says the Rabbi hastened to put on the emplement of priesthood. The emplement are called "stephilim." and com-put on the emplems of priestacod. The emblems are carled "tephilim," and comprise two small, square, black leather, nermetically scaled cases, about one and prise two small, square, mack learner, nermetheally scaled cases, about one and a half inches squ ra, with the Chaidade letter "sheen" embossed on each side. This is the initial letter of the Hebrew word "Snaddar" (Almighty). One of these is fastened by a loop of leather strap, half an inch in width, around the thick part of the left arm, and is then wound a ven times around the same arm, and also the fingers of the left hand, and is called the "Shel Yad" (for the hand). The other, placed in the center of the forehead by means of a strap band, which passes around the nead, the ends of which hand at considerable length over each shulder. This is called "Shel Rosh" (for the hand). Each of the square receptacles contains his brother, who went from this city to is called "Shell Rosh" (for the field). Ireland about four months ago for the benefit of his health.

The alarm of fire turned in about 11 filts, sixth, seventh, eight and ninth o'clock yesterday, was caused by the burning of the colored college on Win-omy inscribed thereon in Hebrew with the forefinger of the right hand With the forefinger of the right hand the Rabbi toucned first the nead-case containing the parenment; then that on his arm; subsequently and lastly laid his finger on the child's forehead. No sooner was this done than the boy fald back in the cradle and died.

There are various opinions among these belowers who cradle the atory.

those Hebrews who credit the story, as to what this phenomenon signifies. Some think that the child was a prophet, and had some me-sage to people on earth, while others regard it simply as an instance of unnatural process. A lady resi ing at No. 117 Stanton street said it was one of the most singular cases she ever knew of, and was the wonder of the entire community.

Paithful Minister

We clip from the Forester (Welsh) the following account of a faithful follower of St. Paul's example of working with his hands while conducting his ministry. He never had bronchitts, nor dyspepsia, nor summer vacations:

The late Rev. Robert Walker was one of the most remarkable clergymen that have ministered in the Church of England. He ministered for sixty-six years in the parish where he was born, and vas buried there in 1802 gyman and schoolmaster, teaching in the church; for there was no school-house. He sheared his own sheep, spun his own wool, made his own clothes, and those of his own family; made his own shoes, gathered his peat for fuel, made his own candles, and, while thus laboring preached the Gospel every Sunday in the lowly little church of Leathwaite. "He, being dead, yet speaketh."

According to an article in the New York Tribune over 160,000,000 passengers were carried during the last year on the street railroads of that city. To perform this immense work 1,500 cars and over 12,000 horses were in constant use. Double tracks are laid through more than 100 miles of street. About $30,000,000 were expended in building and equipping these roads, and the annual cost of operating and maintaining them exceeds ating and maintaining them exceeds $7,000,000. During the year 22 persons were killed and 64 injured on the various lines.

An exchange says that Edward A. Stokes, who shot Fisk, has been for the last two months confined to his bed in the hospital of Sing-Sing with asthmand chills and fever, contracted in the and chills and lever, contracted in the prison. His constitution appears much broken, his bair is almost white, and his form is bent and attenuated. His term of imprisonment, by a stretch of the law, will expire next September, but his counsel claim that it should end by the 6th of January.

Mons. Sardou, the author of "L'Oncle Sam," that atrocious libel uponAmerican life, was recently introduced to an American woman in Paris. "I am delighted to make your acquaintance, Madame," said the playright. "I should think you would be glad, M. Sardou," was the reply, "for to judge by your 'Uncle Sam' you never met an American lady before."

A decently-dressed but hard-featured laay was left standing at the depot at Newark a few days ago. She was of a party of three, but somehow didn't get on the train fast enough, and it started off without her. And every married man on board laughed so hearfily when the conductor passed the word that she was a newly-elected mother-in-law.

In 1820 there were about sixty paper-mills in Massachusetts, only six of which had machines. They consumed about 1,700 tons rags, &c., and produced about $75,0,000 worth of paper a year. Massa-chusetts has now 147 mills in operation, with a capacity for manufacturing 186 tons of paper every 24 hours.
